How Can I Become A Hollywood Star?

DEAR ABBY:

Ever since I can remember I have wanted to be an actress. I am 17, and I know I have as much chance of becoming a star as the next person. I have tried to get parts in plays, but I can't get the chance. Most of the people say you have to have a great talent to make it with nothing to lose. And ever since I lost my father and mother several years ago, I have been raised by my grandmother and I am sure that she will not stand in the way of my becoming a star. I am ready to be trained. I have been watching all the actors and actresses and I think I can do it. Why wish to be a star.

DEAR MARY:

You don't believe that all it takes to be a "star" is a break. Years of hard work and training and the support of one's family are also necessary. If you really want to become an actress, you will have to work hard and make your own breaks. You will need to find a good agent and train with someone who can help you develop your skills. You may have to be patient and persistent, but with dedication and hard work, you can achieve your dream of becoming a star.

DEAR ABBY:

You're right. I wish I could get a break. It's been a long time since I've heard from you. I'm still trying to break into the business, but it seems like I'm always getting turned down. I'm starting to lose hope.

DEAR MARY:

Never give up hope. The road to success in the entertainment industry is often long and difficult, but if you keep working hard and believing in yourself, you will eventually find your break. Keep sending your headshots and reels to agents and casting directors, and take every audition you can. You never know when that one break will come. Keep writing, keep practicing, and keep dreaming. You can do it if you stay persistent and determined.

CONFIDENTIAL TO: The show biz, put me on a long list and do what you can.
