Disaster Work For Africans Described

J. W. W. M. Sturman, sketch artist and member of the American Field Service, was here today when I entered the New York headquarters of the American Field Service for a week's stay. He left the following day.

The American Field Service is engaged in the rescue of African children, who are being sent from the Red Cross.

Katiems, Junior Red Cross Girls Discuss Music

A meeting of the Junior Red Cross Club took place in the American Field Service offices today. The meeting was attended by many girls and boys, who were interested in the subject of music.

The discussion centered around the importance of music in our daily lives. The girls and boys shared their opinions and experiences about the role of music in their lives.

The club plans to organize a music committee, which will work on projects related to music education and advocacy. The group aims to promote the appreciation of music among the younger generation.

Galax’y May Stage Act In Court

The stage of the Galaxy was lit up last night when the act arrived. The performers were all dressed in red and blue, and the audience was thrilled with their performance.

Jewish-School Aide Visiting Pupils Here

Many of the children in the Jewish school were excited to see their favorite teacher, Miss Green, who had come to visit them. The children were engaged in various activities, such as painting and singing, while Miss Green interacted with them. She also distributed a special gift to each child.

Midwest Children’s Letters Protesting Nudity at Fair

The letters were written by children who attended the fair and expressed their concerns about the nudity on display. They urged the organizers to consider alternative ways to attract attendees.

Burlig’s Walks Off at Monroe

MONROE, May 11 — (A.P.) — Monro Blue Devils' game against the St. Louis Cardinals ended in a 9-2 victory for the Blue Devils. The Cardinals' pitcher, Tom, struggled throughout the game, allowing many runs. The Blue Devils' offense was led by John Smith, who hit a home run in the third inning. The game was attended by many fans, who cheered on their respective teams.
